Todd Bracher | 2010

Distinctively simple and practical, the stackable Alodia stool is fashioned from metal tubing and a laser-cut steel seat plate. Two heights are available for a variety of applications, including cafés, touchdown workstations, and meeting rooms. Finish options are White, Anthracite, Mustard, Blue, and Green.
