In today's dynamic workplace...

... collaboration is key and the need for space and tools is essential.

Evolving Workspaces

Today's workspaces prioritize collaboration and flexibility, adapting to hybrid work models and fostering creativity, productivity, and social connection.

When given the choice, people are drawn to places that make them feel the most productive.

The Office serves as the centre of connection and culture for the organization and as a result, more group spaces are necessary to support these connections.

Collaborative Furniture

Furniture designed for collaboration supports diverse postures—seated, standing, perching, dynamic—and encourages movement.

Moving between standing and seated positions enhances comfort, boosts creativity, and fosters effective teamwork.

Flexible furniture adapts to various collaborative needs.

More Collaboration: Agile and mobile

Encouraging interaction, movement, and supporting diverse work activities through thoughtful space design and user control.

- Spaces designed to encourage user interaction and movement.
- Settings designed to support user control.
- Space division used to create legibility or a visual anchor to the space.
- Consideration for all types of work activity.

More Collaboration: Flexibility and Adaptability

People are empowered to work fluidly in an ecosystem that includes office, home and third places. This flexibility lets them choose the right space for the right task, with the resources and technology that support both.

- Spaces adaptable to various work styles and activities
- Integration of technology to support seamless transitions
- Resources available in all environments for productivity
- Flexibility in location choice enhances work-life balance
- Empowerment through user-defined workspace preferences
